

The 11 Sources of Disruption

Disruption stems from influential sources of macro change. The sources represent external uncertainties—factors that affect business, government and society but that are typically outside of any one entity's control.

Future Today Institute's simple tool – Disruption Wheel – reveals signals of change, how those signals are connected to each other, and where they converge to form long-term trends.

